Referendum: A Fair Deal Required

With the Referendum campaigns barely under way, I already have the feeling that British voters will not get a fair deal. The establishment have chosen the campaign leaders, Sir Stuart Rose, a millionaire businessman to lead the STOP IN campaign, and a former Tory Minister, Lord Nigel Lawson to lead the LEAVE campaign.

Both men are solid members of the establishment, and both are regarded by our masters as a "safe pair of hands". The campaigning by British nationalists to LEAVE the EU has not been recognised, nor has the impact of UKIP, who polled 4 million votes in the recent General Election on a LEAVE policy.

Prime Minister Cameron, a committed Europhile, has pledged to get a new deal for Britain, but even his own Foreign Minister, Phillip Hammond has conceded that Britain will not get back control of its borders while we remain in the EU. The latest ploy being considered by the Europhiles is to allow the 1.5 million EU migrants currently living in Britain the right to vote in the referendum. This, in the near certainty, that none will vote for Britain to leave, thus ending their absolute right to take our jobs, homes, school places and welfare benefits!

Dangerous Times

The attacks in Paris by Muslim terrorists have left our government falling over themselves to convince the British people that not all Muslims are terrorists. Therefore how embarrassing must it have been when a poll carried out by a national newspaper revealed that 20%, or one in five of British Muslims had some sympathy for the actions and policies of the terrorists. One in five means some half a million Muslims living in Britain have sympathy for our enemy.

While it is true that all Muslims are not terrorists, it is equally true that all terrorists seem to be Muslims!

We live in dangerous times.

Finally, the Editor and Staff of League Sentinel would like to wish all of our readers a Merry Yule and a wish fulfilled New Year!

SURRENDER !

Cameron Surrenders Britain to EU Control

With the referendum on whether Britain should remain in the European Union scheduled to be held by the end of 2017, our Prime Minister, David Cameron has at last presented his demands for reform of the EU, which if accepted, would enable the government to campaign for Britain to stay in the EU in the forthcoming Referendum.

But the "demands" are so weak, so ineffectual; they resemble a document surrendering Britain's future to Brussels.

In fact, our Prime Minister didn't make ANY demands, instead, almost on bended knees; he "requested" some miniscule changes in the current rules and practices.

So there we have it, Cameron's plan to reform the EU!

Britain's "Demands"

Britain should be exempt from the EU commitment to "ever closer" union.

Despite this commitment enshrined in the founding principles of the EU, it is largely symbolic and an exemption for Britain would mean very little in real terms.

A cut in the amount of regulations issued by the EU effecting businesses.

In the last year the EU has issued over 1000 new regulations, adding to the 23,000 already in place.

Several other EU members also have concerns, but any changes gained would be ineffective.

Fairness between Euro-zone and non-Euro countries.

A move to protect specifically the City of London's financial centre from Eurozone countries imposing financial rules on Britain which would be detrimental to the City.

An agreement is likely to be reached to alleviate Cameron's fears.

No in-work benefits or social housing until working migrants have been in Britain for at least four years.

Cameron viewed this as being a major deterrent for European migrants coming to live in Britain. Predictably, the countries whose citizens would be most effected, such as Poland, Romania and Bulgaria rejected this "demand".

With over 600,000 new migrants coming to Britain in the past year, 55% of them from the EU, and despite immigration being the average Briton's number-one concern, demands for a complete, although temporary halt from further immigration has been quietly dropped from the "demands".

Demands that migrants must have a job arranged before entering Britain have been dropped, as have plans to allow Britain to "opt out" of the jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice. British Court decisions will continue to be overturned by the European Court.

So Cameron is not "demanding" anything that will give us back control of our borders and control of our country!

His demands on restricting in-work benefits may be negotiated, but the restriction will be for a few months, not four years. There is no doubt that Cameron will try to present this as a major victory despite Britain's, Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) recently reporting that any such benefit cuts "would do little to cut immigration".

It is becoming clearer, that the only way to get our country back, is to vote to LEAVE the EU as soon as possible.

NEWS AROUND BRITAIN

JANNER: No Justice for Victims

Greville Janner, the former Labour MP and Chairman of the Jewish Board of Deputies, who is accused of 22 charges of rape and sexual abuse of nine underage boys, was excused from attending his recent pre-trial hearing at the Old Bailey on "health" grounds.

This unusual step does not give much confidence to his alleged victims that they will ever achieve justice in a British Court.

At a previous hearing, pleas from Janner's defence team that a court appearance cause a "catastrophic reaction" to their client was dismissed by the Judge and Janner was forced to appear, with no visible "catastrophe" occurring. But this time, Judge Openshaw, who will be the trial judge, allowed Janner to stay at home instead of standing in the dock.

Janner: Unfit to Plead?

Another bad omen for victims demanding justice is the agreement by both the Crown Prosecution Service (who didn't want to prosecute Janner in the first case) and Janner's legal team, that Janner is unfit to enter pleas or stand trial owing to alleged advanced dementia. A "fitness to plead" hearing will take place in December before a trial judge, but legal experts say that it is very unlikely that a trial judge will overturn the agreement made between the prosecution and defence lawyers and Janner will never face trial and punishment for his alleged crimes. He will walk free. Who speaks for the victims?

New British Union Hold Rally in Cambridgeshire

The Fascist, New British Union party, held a successful rally in Cambridgeshire recently with guest speaker, Jez Turner of the London Forum sharing the platform with the NBU's Head of Security, John Ryan and NBU Youth leader, Jack Jones.

NBU leader, Gary Raikes revealed plans to put the NBU on the electoral map by entering candidates in the Scottish Community Council elections later this year. Mr Raikes also revealed that following a meeting with the leadership of the British People's Party, the BPP will be disbanding their party and joining the NBU.

BBC Set to Glamorise Jewish "43 Group" Thugs

The BBC and the American television network NBC are to produce a six-part television drama about the Jewish criminal gang, the "43 Group" and the story of their attempts to stifle the growth of patriotic groups, emerging after WW2, with a campaign of violence and intimidation. The gang was formed in 1946 and disbanded in 1950.

That the BBC sets out to glamorise thuggery in any shape or form is a disgrace, and a violation of their Charter. The project is at an "advanced stage" and complaints should be made now, in an attempt to persuade them to abandon the project.

NEWS AROUND BRITAIN

Britain First Leader to Stand for London Mayor

Paul Golding, leader of the patriotic, Britain First party has announced he intend to be a candidate in next May's London Mayoral election.

His candidacy will gain the party invaluable exposure to 10 million London voters, as each candidate is entitled to send a two-page booklet, post free, to each London voter. The party will also gain from the accompanying media attention, although most news coverage is likely to be hostile.

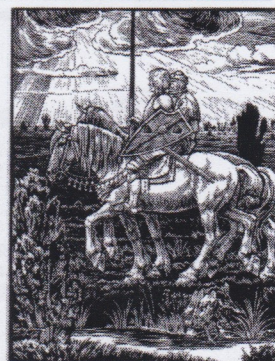

Paul Golding: Britain First Candidate for London Mayor

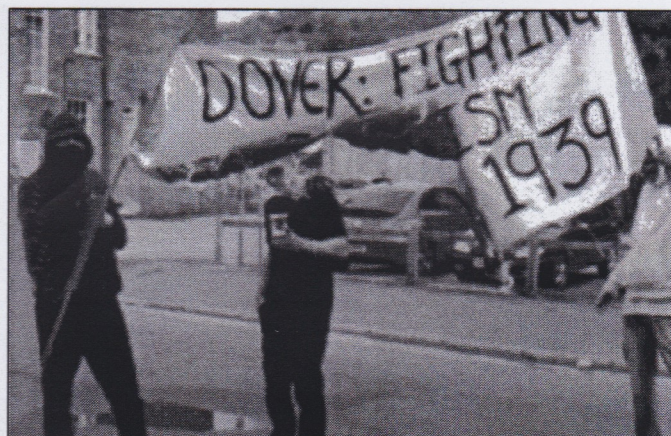

Already, ambitious plans are being formulated for a campaign rally in Trafalgar Square, and a possible march to Downing Street. But first the party needs to raise an estimated £30,000 for candidates' deposits and campaign literature. With rising immigration and rising foreign birth-rates in our Capital, Paul Golding describes the election as the "last chance" to help London before it becomes an "occupied" city.

National Front Organises Successful Protest in Dover

Over 300 nationalists held a successful march through Dover, calling for better protection for British truck drivers being attacked by would be illegal migrants in Calais. The march was organised by the National Front and was supported by members of the League of St George's "Dover Patrol", The South East Alliance, the Scottish Defence League and the "Infidels" organisation.

Local shoppers applauded as the nationalists assembled in the town centre, but after marching just a few hundred yards towards the Eastern Docks the march was attacked by anti-fascist thugs throwing bottles, bricks and smoke flares. The local police moved quite slowly to move the thugs to a nearby car park. But suddenly the police cordon broke and nationalists and anti-fascists were joined in physical combat. By the time the police got the situation back under control, seven anti-fascists required hospital treatment and had been relieved of several posters and banners. Arriving safely at their destination, the gathering was addressed by several speakers including veteran nationalist Richard Edmonds. At the end of the speeches many of the marchers made their way to the Castle Inn, where outside, the anti-fascist "trophies" were displayed and ceremonially burnt!

Germany Invaded as its Government Collaborates

A little over 70 years ago, Germany faced invasion on two fronts. As the Red Army swept from the East, British, US and Canadian forces advanced from the West. In Berlin, units of the Volkssturm (Homeguard), supported by members of the Hitler Youth, (Hitler Jugend) some as young as 13, prepared to fight to the death to defend their Homeland from the foreign invaders.

1945: Young Germans Prepare to Fight for their Fatherland

Now fast-forward 70 years, and once again Germany is being invaded, but this time the German government is actively collaborating with the invasion.

The chief collaborator is the former-Communist, now Chancellor, Angela Merkel. With tens of thousands of refugees, asylum seekers, economic migrants and Army deserters arriving on European soil every day; it was up to Germany, the strong-man of Europe to lead the resistance. Blockading the Libyan coast and destroying people trafficker's boats on the beaches was one option. Persuading Turkey, by bribes or threats, to police its own coast to prevent invaders boats from leaving, was another.

Instead, the German Chancellor publicly offered asylum to all refugees from Syria, generating a mass invasion not seen since 1945!

To date, over 800,000 foreigners have forced their way through Europe on route to Germany, and more arrive every day. It is expected than more than a million will await resettlement in Germany by the end of the year.

It has been estimated that over one third of the "refugees" are in fact economic migrants, from Africa, Pakistan and Afghanistan, and eighty percent are single, male Muslims.

Initially, the German public was presented by the mass media as being extremely welcoming, with volunteers greeting the migrants with food and blankets, and scenes of the welcome was broadcast worldwide. This led to almost every migrant interviewed as they marched through Europe to declare their destination was "Germany".

2015: These New Invaders Have Been Welcomed by the German Government

Many of the new migrants are being relocated to the rural parts of the former East Germany, their numbers often swamping small villages.

But now young Germans are beginning to fight against the "invaders", horrified at seeing their country being changed before their eyes.

Empty buildings, designated as potential migrants accommodation are being firebombed before they can be occupied, and in just one month there have been over 300 attacks on migrant accommodation, with 50 being destroyed by fire. Coaches carrying migrants have been stoned. German nationalist rallies are being held weekly, with audiences growing, but our German contact told League Sentinel, "we believe direct action is the only way. German youth will fight to defend the Fatherland. Civil war is on its way".

Just what has Angela Merkel started?

Front National Leader Faces Court for “Inciting Racial Hatred”

Marine Le Pen, leader of the patriotic Front National, is to face charges of “Inciting racial hatred” following comments that she made about Muslims praying in the streets occupying French territory like the Germans did between 1940 and 1944.

Her comments were made to an audience in Lyon, after she had witnessed streets being blocked by thousands of Muslims praying outside a Mosque. She said she viewed the scenes as “an occupation of part of our territory where religious law is applied. Sure, there are no tanks and no soldiers, but it is an occupation nevertheless”!

The decision to prosecute Ms Le Pen has been condemned as a political rather than a legal decision, particularly as the comments were made, five years ago, in 2010!

Cynics claim that the decision to prosecute is directly linked to recent opinion polls that suggest that Front National will make massive gains in Northern France in the forthcoming local elections scheduled for December. According to the polls, Front National will poll between 37 and 39%, well ahead of the Conservative Les Republicans, with 26% and eclipsing the ruling Socialist Party who are forecast to poll between 19 and 21%.

If the poll forecasts are correct, the FN would make massive gains in Northern France, which is currently controlled by the Socialists.

Somewhat bizarrely, the complaint against Ms Le Pen's comments in Lyon in 2010, were investigated and dismissed in 2012. So could the new decision to prosecute the FN leader be influenced by her decision to stand as a candidate in the Presidential elections in 2017?

In the Presidential elections of 2012, she came third behind the eventual winner, Francois Hollande, and former President Nicolas Sarkozy. But now with support rising she could be a very real threat, unless of course she is in prison!

An FN colleague told League Sentinel, “There are dirty tricks involved here, she (Ms Le Pen) is now a massive threat to the ruling elite and they will stop at nothing to stop her standing as a Presidential candidate”.

Look Back at History

Ten years of John Bean's Combat

By Bill Baillie

"Combat" ran from 1958 to 1968. It was written before the Race Relations Act and during the Cold War. It was therefore race-conscious and anti-communist. It might seem dated to modern eyes but the policies of the National Labour Party are still relevant.

The first issue carried the headline "Martyrs of Notting Hill". It questioned the fitness of the judge to try the case and criticised the four year jail sentences handed down at the Old Bailey to white teenagers involved in the Notting Hill race riot of September 1958.

For the first two years the paper served the National Labour Party that was founded by John Bean on Empire Day May 24th 1958. The housing crisis and unemployment were constant themes but an article in the very first issue revealed John Tyndall's obsession with the "Master Race". In an article entitled "Race and Civilisation – History's Warning", He claimed that all civilisations were founded by Nordics.

John Bean Speaks at an NLP Rally

It was the Master Race theory that separated the NLP from Mosley's Union Movement. They had similar social policies and they both advocated a union of the White Dominions with Europe. Union Movement stood for the whole of Europe but the NLP restricted itself to northwest corner.

The three principle writers of Combat, John Bean, John Tyndall and Andrew Fountaine each had their own distinctive input. John Bean dealt with elections, campaigns and party organisation, John Tyndall concentrated on "racial hygiene" and Andrew Fountaine on history and economics. The NLP phase lasted until issue #5 of March 1960.

Issue # 6 of June 1960 supported the British National Party, a union of the National Labour Party with Colin Jordan's White Defence League. The WDL had a HQ at 74 Princedale Road in West London. This was bequeathed to CJ by Arnold Leese the pre-war leader of the Imperial Fascist League. When the Party split in 1962 John Bean kept Combat and most of the members but Colin Jordan got the Spearhead gang and the house. 74 Princedale Road was sold in 2011 for over £2 million – long after Colin Jordan had moved on.

Combat # 6 of June 1960 entered its second phase with a front page article on immigration entitled "The Black Invasion." And it featured an article by Colin Jordan entitled "Jewish Economic Conquest."

Issue # 8 of November 1960 contained the first installment of Andrew Fountains' book "The Meaning of an Enemy." It stretched to eighteen installments that appeared in almost every issue until # 36 of December 1965; a bitter denunciation of liberal democracy that left no stone unturned.

Combat had always been critical of Jewish involvement in capitalism but it now stepped up the attack. Issue #10 of February 1961 dismissed the Eichmann Trial as a propaganda stunt. This was the highpoint of Colin Jordan's influence. It provoked a strong reaction from the mainstream party and resulted in the split of 1962. Colin Jordan together with members of his paramilitary organisation "Spearhead" founded the National Socialist Movement on Adolf Hitler's birthday, April 20th.

Issue # 17 of June 1962 was the first of the third phase of Combat. It carried an article by John Bean entitled "Stay Out of the Common Market." He warned that the Common Market was a bankers' racket that would harm the White Dominions and flood the UK with Italian immigrants. We eventually joined the Common Market in 1973 but the mass migration from Europe came fifty years later with the arrival of the Poles

In issue # 38 of 1966 JB's editorial was entitled "Let's Keep Nordicism in Perspective." This showed a softening of his attitude toward Southern Europeans after four years away from Colin Jordan and John Tyndall.

In July 1962 Colin Jordan held a National Socialist rally in Trafalgar Square under a huge banner saying "Free Britain from Jewish Control. The rally was wrecked by an organised gang of anti-fascist who had decided to crush any free speech. On September 2nd 1962 Union Movement and the BNP both had rallies in East London. Both events were attacked by the Reds. Mosley was beaten up, 54 people were arrested and several Union Movement supporters sustained injuries. Union Movement had more than a hundred members at their meeting but the BNP's forty members were totally overwhelmed at their rendezvous point in Balls Pond Road. Political violence is never pretty but those of us who were there will never forget it. The "Battle of Balls Pond Road" was reported in issue # 18.

But the BNP picked itself up, dusted itself down, and started all over again. Its highpoint was its election result in Southall in October 1964. John Bean got 3,410, 9.2 % of the poll. This has since been surpassed but it was then the highest vote ever obtained by a patriotic candidate. This was reported in issue # 29, January 1965.

The last issue of Combat as a BNP newspaper was # 39 of 1966. It covered immigration, tax reform, the economy, and a humorous article entitled "Under the Flat Stones", by Ted Budden.

Issue # 40, Spring 1967, supported the National Front – a union of the BNP, the League of Empire Loyalists and a faction of the Racial Preservation Society. With the birth of the NF the editorial freedom enjoyed by John Bean since the split with Colin Jordan came to an end.

The last four issues of Combat reflected the insular nationalist policies of the National Front. They rejected European unity and called for a union of Britain and the White Dominions.

The last issue of Combat was # 43, Spring 1968. John Bean penned an article entitled "Vietnam – Can we stay Neutral." His answer was that we should support America. A full-scale war with the Soviet Union was a very real threat but Harold Wilson's government was tottering on the brink of bankruptcy and we could not afford to fight a war that was effectively lost at Dien Bien Phu in 1954

In the same issue an article by Denis Pirie entitled "Britain's Fraudulent Democracy" called for a more representative system of government. And John Bean warned that Nigeria and the former French African colonies had applied to join the Common Market.

The pages of Combat from 1958 to 1968 chart its course from the NLP to the NF. They cover the collapse of the British Empire and the massive demographic upheaval in the UK. Many of its predictions never came to pass. Communism did not take over the world and we were not inundated with unemployed Italians. It was right about the Third World invasion but when the immigration issue finally came to dominate the headlines it was not the work of a prescient revolutionary nationalist but by the Tory free trader Enoch Powell who had pioneered the importation of Third World labour in the early Sixties. Powell made his "Rivers of Blood" speech at Birmingham in April 1968 just as the final issue of Combat was being printed – and 15 years after John Bean first spoke about it

You can get this reproduction copy of Combat from League Enterprises for just £5.75. Comprising of eight, A3 size pages, it is a must for students of British political history.

"IT'S WAR"

Says French President Hollande Following Muslim Terrorists Attacks in Paris

French President, Francois Hollande, issued a formal declaration of war against the Muslim terror group ISIS following a series of armed attacks in Paris which left 130 innocent civilians dead. He vowed that "France would be merciless in dealing with the terrorists."

As we go to print, the French have increased their bomber attacks on IS strongholds in Syria and are sending their largest aircraft carrier the, Charles De Gaulle to the region. The French army patrol the streets of Paris and their security services have killed and captured Islamist murderers in the city suburbs. The EU "open borders" policy has been suspended and border controls re-introduced. But despite evidence that at least two of the attackers entered the European mainland and onto France posing as "refugees", the Socialist President has refused demands by Front National (FN) to close the borders to all refugees and asylum seekers, and to establish internment camps to hold all French Islamists who have returned from Syria, and could be regarded as a "threat to national security".

French Police Respond to Muslim Terror Attacks

While Parisians and the French in general, have been remarkably resilient to the ongoing terrorist threat, their socialist government seems happy to continue to appease their 5 million Muslim citizens.

Evidence has emerged that some of the planning for the Paris attack took place in neighbouring Belgium, and several arrests have been made.

Jean-Marie Le Pen's Granddaughter to Stand in Regional Elections

Marion Le Pen, the 25 year-old granddaughter of Front National founder, Jean-Marie Le Pen, and niece of the party leader, Marine Le Pen, has announced that she will be standing for the party in the Southern French region of, Provence-Alpes-Cote d'Azur, in Decembers Regional elections.

Opinion polls are already showing Ms Le Pen level with the Conservatives, and well ahead of the Socialists, who currently rule the region.

The region borders Italy and is one of the paths taken by tens of thousands of migrants on their way to Northern Europe, and anti-Immigrant feeling is high.

Ms Le Pen (pictured right) has promised, if elected, to stop subsidies paid by the region to support migrants, and to stop regional grants made to charities that help migrant workers.

Although credited with bringing a younger influence into the party, her views on immigration and its detrimental effect on France is as uncompromising as her Grandfather's, which has pleased the FN's traditional voters.

Anne Frank Fund Admits Diary is Largely a Post-war Fabrication

The Swiss-based Anne Frank Fund, which controls the copyright of the "holocaust memoir" The Diary of Anne Frank has admitted the book was largely written by her father, Otto Frank, AFTER her death in February 1945.

The admission comes as the copyright period of 70 years comes to an end this year, 2015, seventy years after Anne Frank died of typhus. By admitting that Otto Frank co-authored the best selling book, the Fund hopes to extend their control of the copyright, (and the lucrative royalties it generates,) until 2050, seventy-years after Otto Frank's death in 1980.

Government Refuses to Take "Share" of Migrants

Following the news that two of the Islamist terrorists involved in the attacks on Paris travelled through Europe posing as "refugees", the Hungarian government has refused to accept the 160,000 refugees that were allotted to Hungary as part of the EU quota system.

Following German Chancellor Angela Merkel's open invitation to migrants, which led to the mass invasion of Europe, the Hungarians have resisted any attempt at migrant occupation, and have erected massive barbed wire fences to stop migrants entering the country illegally

Obituary

Willis Carto 1926 - 2015

It was with great sadness that we learned of the death at the age of 89 of Willis Carto.

Willis was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana, and served his country fighting the Japanese in the Philippines. He was wounded in action and awarded the "Purple Heart" medal.

A dedicated racial-nationalist, Willis founded the Liberty Lobby in 1955 and published "Spotlight" magazine.

In 1979 Willis also founded the Institute of Historical Review (IHR) which investigated and published articles about the authorised version of the Holocaust. Because Willis refused to accept without challenge, the authorised version, he was condemned as a Holocaust denier!

Through the IHR, he made contacts with many different nationalist groups including Ku Klux Klan, Christian Identity groups and the League of St George.

Willis was a prolific publisher, and hopefully his, Barnes Review and the American Free Press carry on his message.

As a former soldier, and holder of the Purple Heart medal, Willis will be interred in Arlington National Cemetery, despite opposition from political opponents.

Willis was active and loyal to our cause until the end. He will be sadly missed.

Farewell old Comrade, for you the struggle is over.

YULETIDE and the WINTER SOLSTICE

The traditional Festival of Yule and the Winter Solstice have largely vanished into the Christian festival of Christmas, itself now challenged by politically correct councils to vanish it into a non-religious "Winter Festival". But what is Yuletide and the Winter Solstice? Both of which were celebrated by our North European ancestors long before Christianity?

To our ancestors living in the forests and on the frozen plains of Northern Europe, the Winter Solstice was an important religious event. Also known as the festival of Yule it celebrated the end of the dark days of winter, and the coming of the new spring. For the Solstice marked the shortest day and longest night of the year. It is also the turning point of the year, as following the longest night, the sun begins to grow stronger in the sky and gradually the days become longer again. From a religious perspective it is a celebration of rebirth and hope for the future. Several ancient sites of "standing stones" are aligned to catch the birth of the new dawn.

The festival of Yule goes by different names throughout Nordic Europe, Jul in Scandinavia, and Jol in old Icelandic. The Prose Edda has references to the Yule festival as does the Ynglinga saga, which mentions a Yule feast lasting three nights. Although in some parts of Europe the festival went on for twelve nights. Feasting as part of the Yule festival seems common practice throughout, with records of toasts being drunk first to Odin for "victory" and then to the gods Njoror and Freyr "for good harvests and for peace".

Fire also played a vital part in the celebrations with the Yule log being burnt on a ceremonial fire and candles or specially prepared lanterns being lit.

Many Pagan dwellers of the great forests that covered much of Northern Europe worshipped "gods of nature" such as the Green Man. This figure was depicted as having two sides, one made of Holly, the Holly King, and the other of Oak, the Oak King. In winter, when nature is dormant and most trees have shed their leaves the Holly King, an evergreen, rules supreme. Following the Winter Solstice, as mother earth warms up, the Oak springs back to life and the Oak King rules again. Thus is the everlasting cycle of nature.

The "Green Man"

Even after Europe began to convert to Christianity the Festival of Yule was still celebrated. In AD 730, the "Father of English History" the Venerable Bede, recorded that the Pagan Yule festival was still being celebrated in parts of Britain, and in AD 840, King Haakon, the first Christian King of Norway, mentions Yule feasts continue to be held throughout his icebound Kingdom.

Many books and articles have been written on this subject, most of which tend to be one-sided. Such works are of limited value to the serious researchers as they are usually unbalanced in the selection of source material and often tendentious in its use.
